

COMPARATIVE CASE OF VILLAGE MIGRATION.
PARIT TENGAH-DJOHOR AND DUKUHBADAG-KUNINGAN

Uton Rustan Harun^a, Astri Mutia Ekasari^b **

^a Senior Lecturer at Department of Urban and Regional Planning, Faculty of Engineering,
Bandung Islamic University, Jalan Tamansari No.1, Bandung- 40116, Indonesia

^b Junior Lecturer at Department of Urban and Regional Planning, Faculty of Engineering,
Bandung Islamic University, Jalan Tamansari No.1, Bandung- 40116, Indonesia

Abstract

Sub-Theme: (4)
Rural Migration and Displacement

Urbanization is happening among Malaysia and Indonesia have been going on since time immemorial the traditional migration patterns and a bit different after the two countries have entered the era of globalization. The mutual benefited of cultural and traditional of migration between villages and between regions has been perceived difference. The field trip to Parit Tengah Djohor (Malaysia) - during RRP 7th - has benefited us to observed, the history of Javaness people who migrate to Parit Tengan (Djohor), enriched the socio-cultural and economics of Javaness village as well as the village of Parit Tengah, whereas opened for palm oil plantations and nowadays developing into quick yield plantation crops (pineapple). Since the ASEAN member open globalism, this rural migration between two countries has a difference meaning. The paper observes the rural migrant who had work in Malaysia to meet their increased of household necessities, has a positive impacts on rural sustainable development in Dukuhbadang in contrary the villager of Parit Tengah are rarely visit Indonesia for the seek of works. The young Parit Tengah villagers who migrate out of the village was caused for seeking of further education and farm business, whereas their village development has supported by migrants from Java. So to investigates the differences of rural migrations, decisions making of rural migration, and the impact to rural development will benefited us for further collaboration research and policy formulation for rural development.

Keywords

migration; mobility; regulation; welfare

1. Introduction.

Since time immemorial, the movement of people from one area to another for reasons other than to seek a new life and cultural exchanges, migration flows between the

* Phone/Fax No: +62 22 420 3368 ext. 137/+62 22 426 3895
rustanuton2@gmail.com, astrimutiaekasari@gmail.com.